W-What is this! Is this my future? No it couldnt be that was only a game...Right?

Chapter 2 by Phantim

I had just been part of a Beta test for an online game called Future Sight Online. It was a game based on the popular Anime Future Diary. I had just finished playing that's what this was about, perhaps one of the people I had played on the game with had hacked my phone and was playing a trick. I wouldn't put it past them. I had been avoiding all the things my phone warned me about. It was a bit of an inconvenience that it only predicted things every hour instead of real time. Still though, better than some of the diary options that were online like twice daily. At least in the online system though, the less frequently you received messages, the more detailed they were... Still, if this was the real thing there would be other diary holders out there, and they would be looking for me.

Thinking this I dip my phone back into my pocket and begin to move a bit more quickly to my next classroom...
